

HOW WE WORK TOGETHER

NOVEMBER 4, 2025

“Better labs are built not just by the PI, but by the everyday actions of everyone.”

EDITORIAL

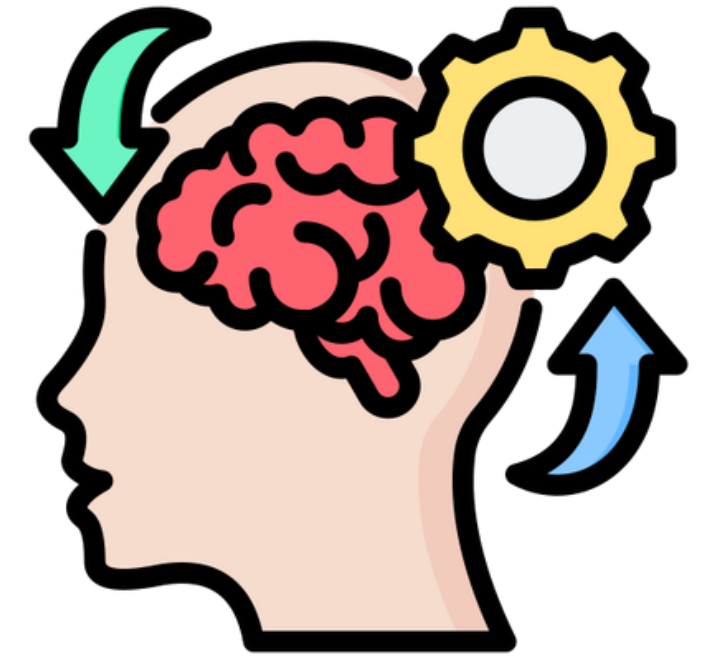

Ten simple rules for how you can help make your lab a better place as a graduate student or postdoc

Matthias C. Rillig ^{1,2*}

1 Freie Universität Berlin, Institut für Biologie, Berlin, Germany, 2 Berlin-Brandenburg Institute of Advanced Biodiversity Research (BBIB), Berlin, Germany

* rillig@zedat.fu-berlin.de

MINDSET

1

Mindset of improving the lab

Think about what could be better (e.g., how lab meetings are run).

2

Be open

Embrace new tools, people, ideas and perspectives.

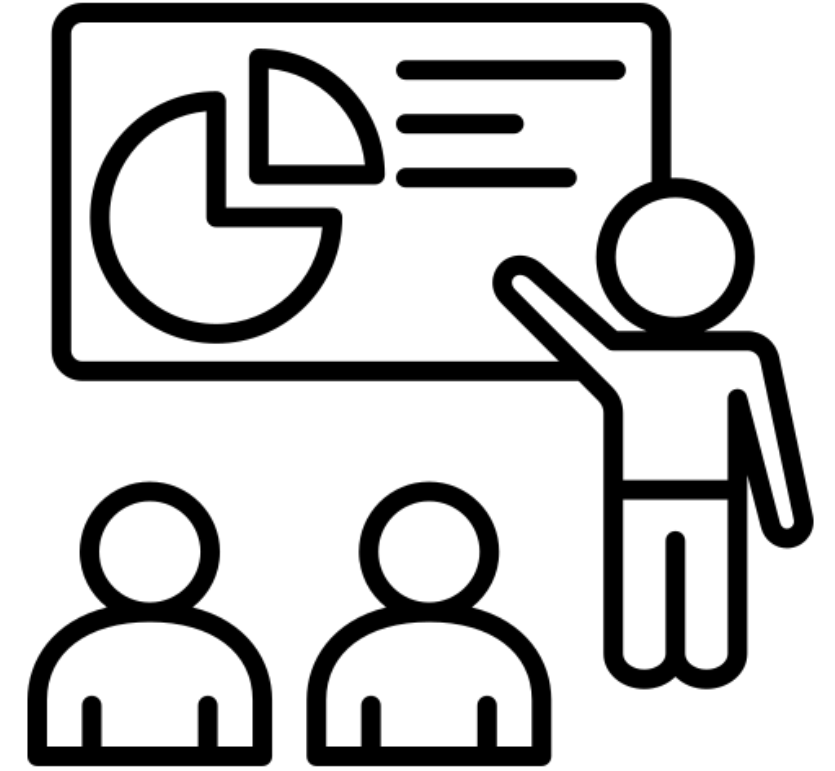

ENGAGE

- 3 Contribute in lab meetings
Speak up and ask questions.
- 4 Engage in lab operations
Help with logistics.

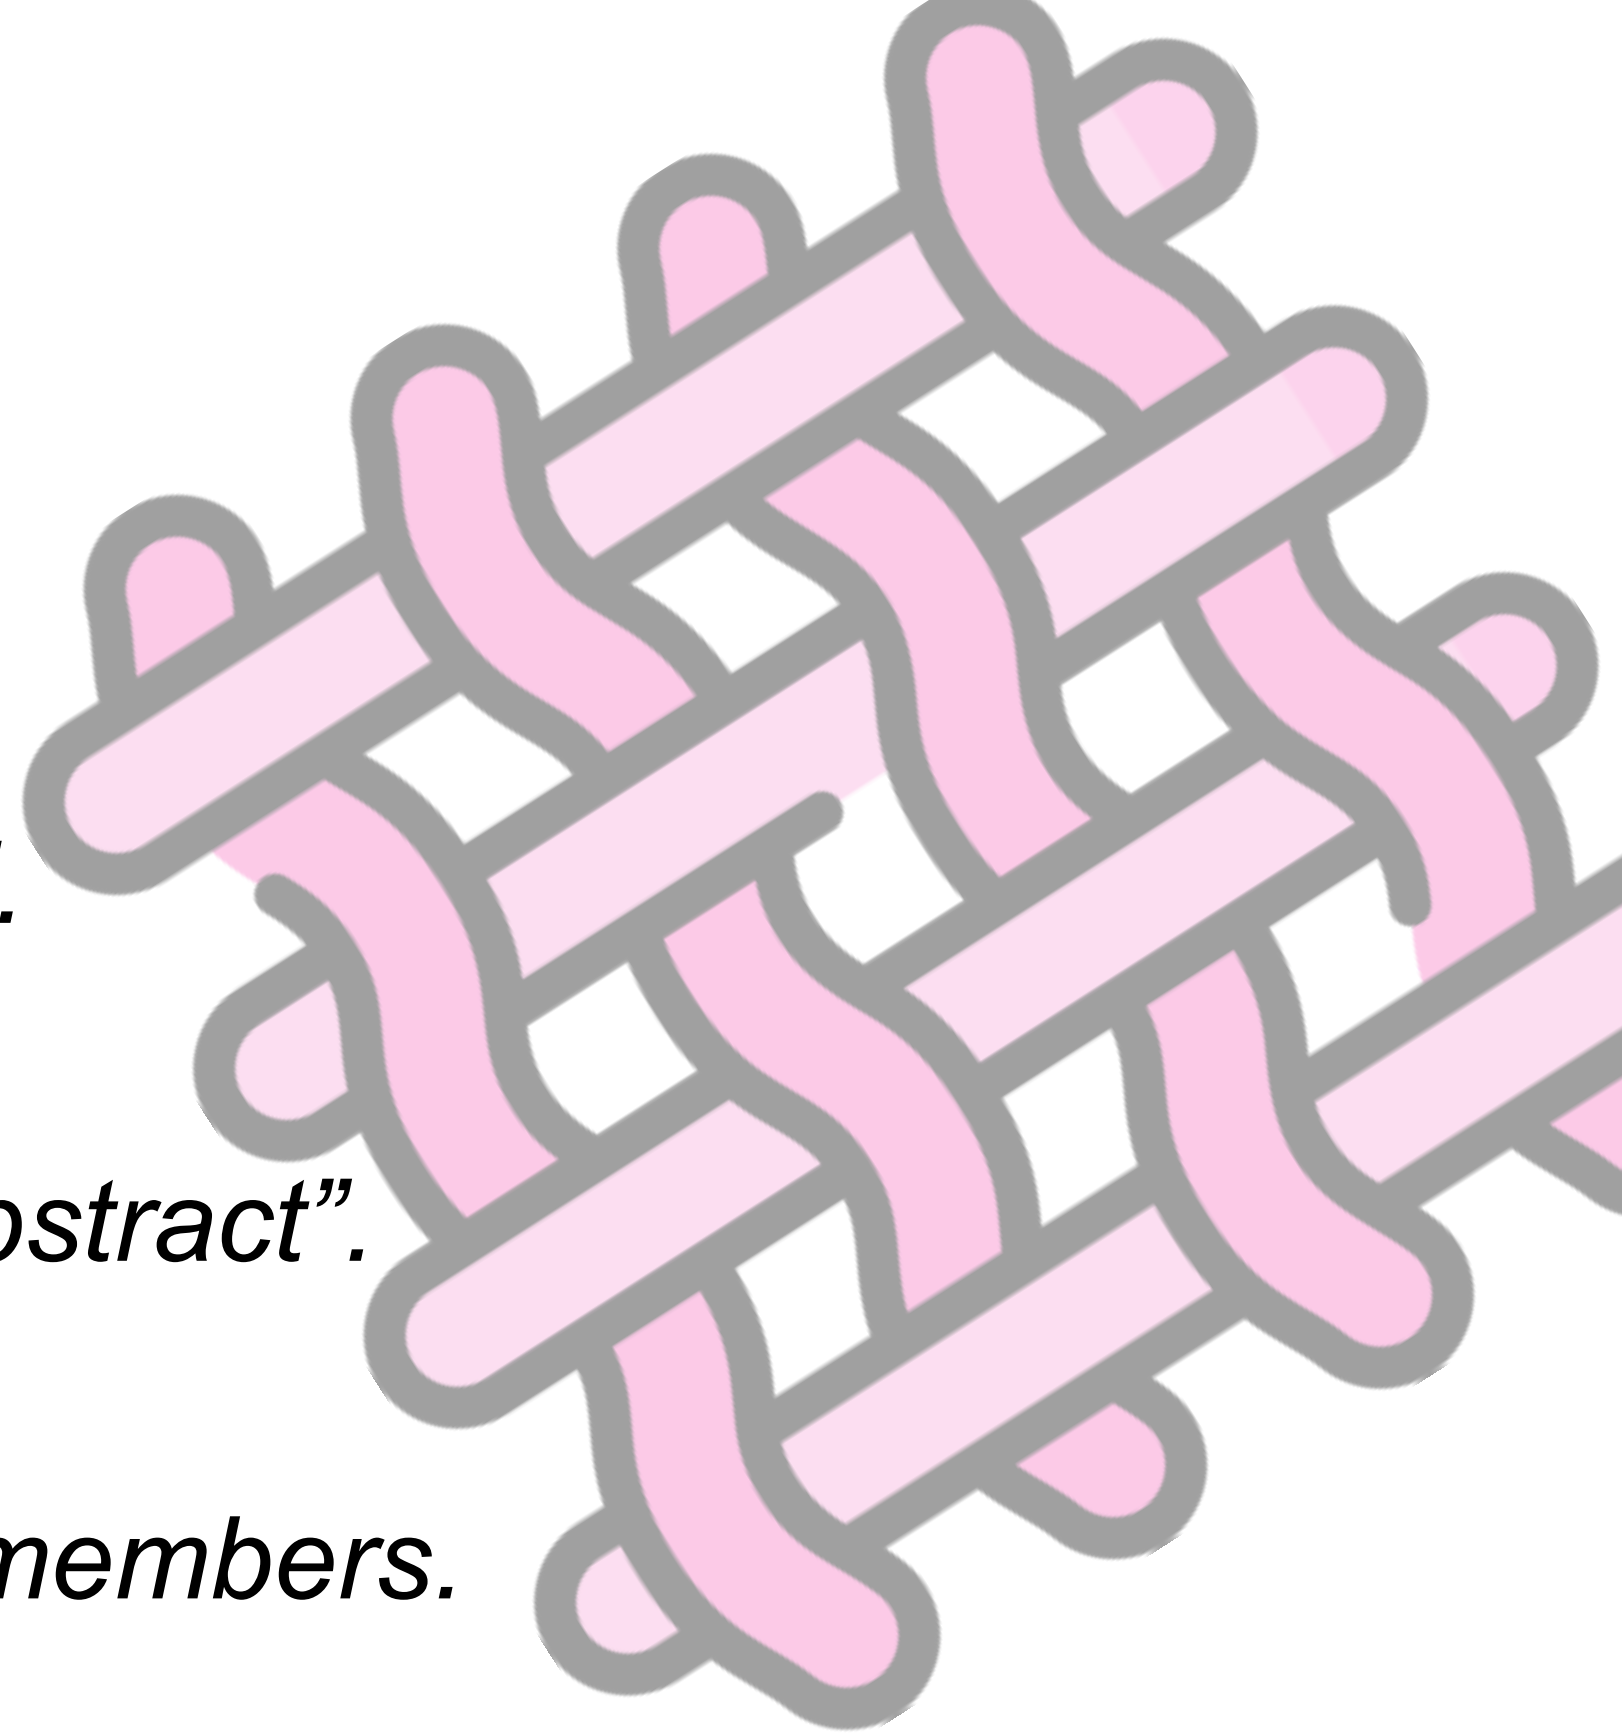

SHARE

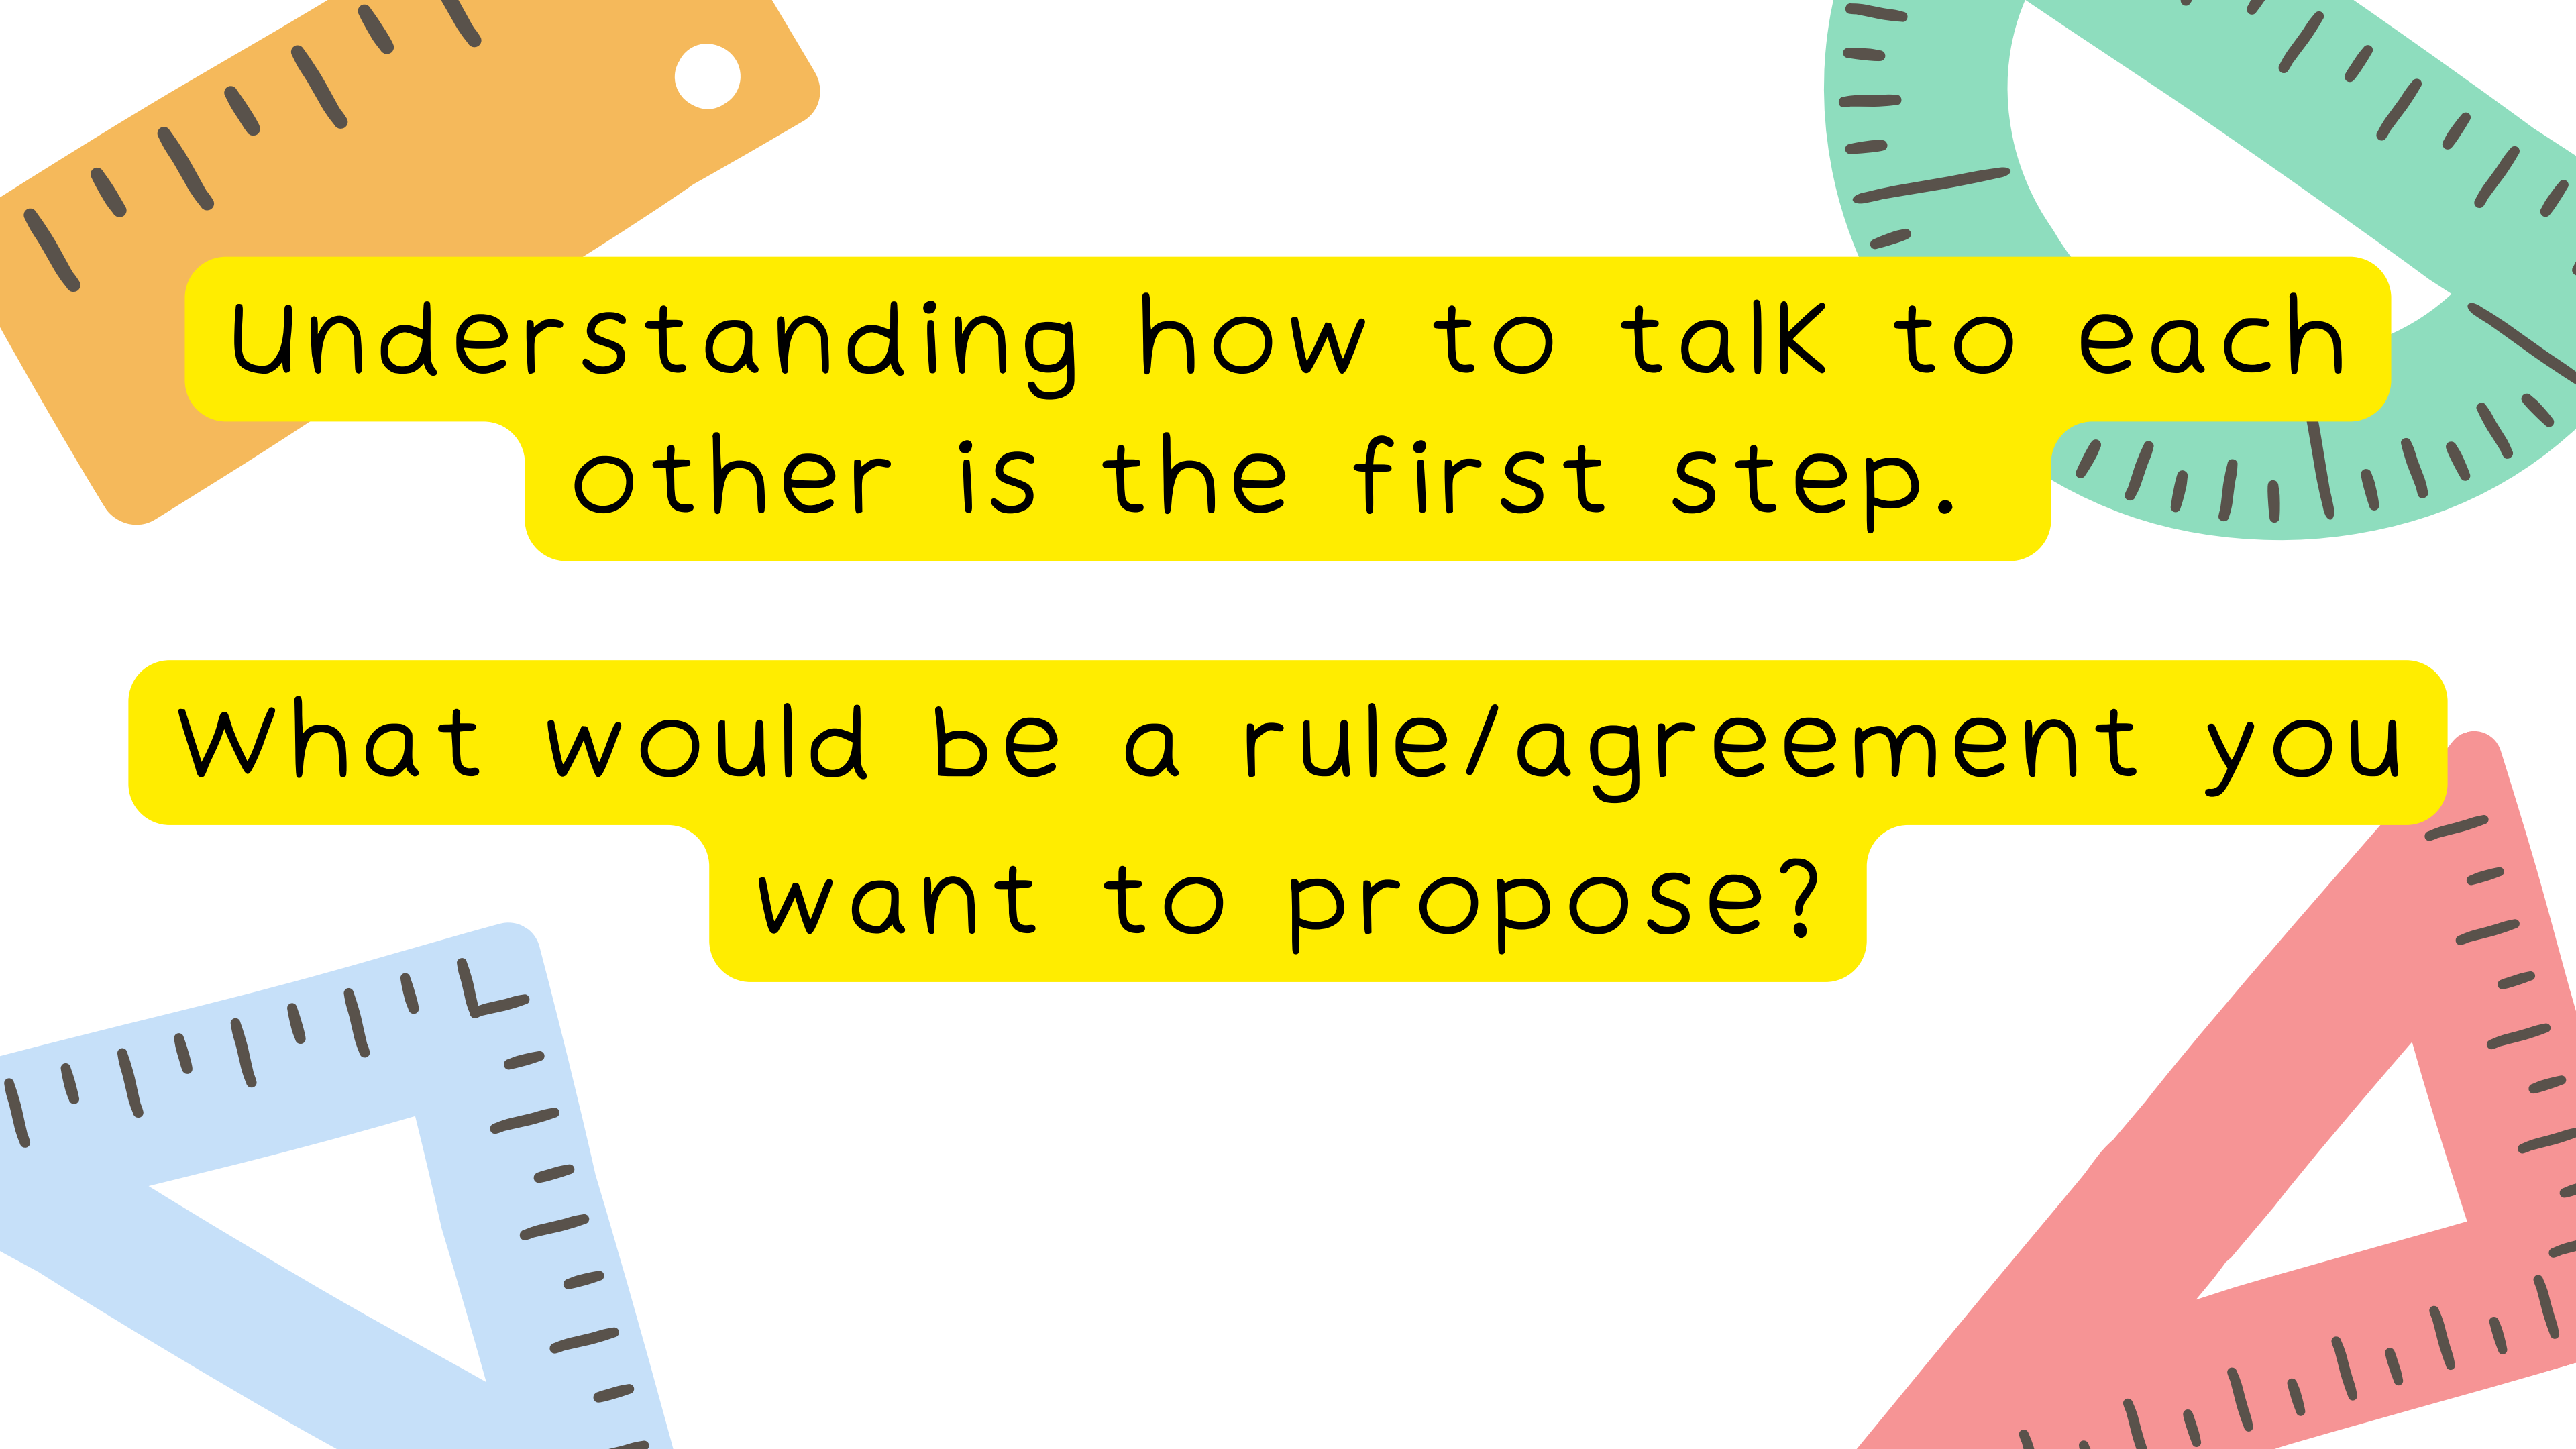

- 5 Organize workshops to share skills
*Host short sessions (e.g., stats tools, productivity hacks). Share your knowledge!
- 6 Organize co-working and -learning sessions
*WAG. Learn together!

COMMUNITY

- 7 Help with onboarding
“Hey, join this slack channel”.
- 8 Help other team members
“Let me revise your ENAR abstract”.
- 9 Contribute to social events
Deepens trust among team-members.
- 10 Lookout for each other
“The deadline for this conference is coming up”.

The background features four colorful rulers: an orange one in the top left, a teal one in the top right, a light blue one in the bottom left, and a pink one in the bottom right. All rulers are marked with black tick marks.

Understanding how to talk to each other is the first step.

What would be a rule/agreement you want to propose?